Question 1: Do you anticipate one or more of the NGSO gateways in these applications will pose coexistence challenges to existing services? Please provide evidence of the impact of any likely interference in terms of throughput and unavailability.	I can't see how it will challenge existing services because there needs to actually be a service worth competing with. The services currently in the market for people, like myself, who live in rural locations, miles away from a fibre cabinet with crappy aluminium cables from said cabinet, frankly are shit. You either get so many connections through companies like Trooli and when something goes wrong with the internet connection they have absolutely no idea which connection is to blame and can't be bothered to actually do anything about it or you have companies like BT who, although consistent, give a service of about 1MB download speed. This is just not viable to run a business from home and have children on devices, etc. etc. So no, there is no competition on the market that Starlink will come up against.
Question 2: Do you consider that the measures to enable coexistence with future systems, as set out by the applicant, are reasonable? If not, what are your concerns and to which specific gateway sites do your concerns relate?	Yes and frankly at this point, I don't really care whether they are or not. I just want an internet connection that works, consistently, reliably and is faster than 0.01 upload speed.
Question 3: Could the granting of one or more of these licences prevent your service from operating in the UK or make it less attractive or more costly to enter the market? If yes: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Please outline your proposed services, including gateway locations, and indicate when you are planning to start deploying your services. • Please also explain the reasons why granting these licence applications would affect or restrict (i.e. make more costly or less attractive) your future service in the UK. • Please state which of the proposed gateway applications would affect your deployment (if relevant). 	As a consumer I don't care whether the granting of these licenses prevents another service from operating because the other service is losing customers due to their crappy service. If there was a UK based service provider who could offer what Starlink is, I would happily use them but there is no one.

Question 4: Do you have any additional concerns or comments regarding this application?

No. Please allow the licences to go through as soon as possible so people in rural communities can benefit from the internet connection speeds the rest of the UK does.
