Introduction

- This annex is published as a supplement to Section 2 'Broadcaster Output' of Ofcom's report The future of children's television programming.
- It provides detail on individual channel output by children's sub-genre for the PSB main channels, the BBC's dedicated children's channels, CBBC and CBeebies, and the commercial children's channels, as well as detail on genre output by day-part for the PSB main channels. (It does not include any children's output on other commercial generalist non-terrestrial channels, such as GMTV, ABC1, Sky One.)
- This output analysis examines the genre range within children's programming and looks at how this range has changed since 2003. It is based on the BARB Children's genre classification only and uses the BARB subgenres of Children's Drama, Factual, Cartoons, Light entertainment/quizzes, Pre-school and Miscellaneous.
- It is important to note that the BARB genre classifications have some drawbacks:
 - All programme output that is targeted at children is not classified as Children's within BARB. Some shows targeted at younger viewers, either within children's slots on the PSB main channels or on the dedicated children's channels are not classified as Children's. For example, Disney Channel's That's so raven is classified in BARB as 'Entertainment Situation Comedy US'. This output analysis is not based on the total output of each specific children's channel, e.g. Playhouse Disney has programming which is not classified as Children's in BARB and in such cases that output is excluded from this analysis. In 2006, in total, approximately 23% of total dedicated children's channels output is not classified as Children's genre in BARB.
 - One must bear in mind that programme classifications have in some cases changed year on year, e.g. a programme classified as Children's Pre-school in one year, may be reclassified as Children's Cartoons in another year. During the period of producing this analysis, there have been a number of programme updates implemented by BARB due to updated broadcaster programme logs. An example is that the programme Monster's Inc was originally classified as Children's Miscellaneous in April 2007. However during the course of the analysis it subsequently was changed to Films.
- Regarding Channel 4 output it is important to note that under the Communications Act Channel 4 has a special obligation to broadcast schools programmes, with the current minimum requirement set at 330 hours per year, including repeats and first run material. Based on the information Channel 4 provides to Ofcom, it delivered 420 hours of school programming in 2006. Although Channel 4 does not have a specific remit to air children's programming, it broadcasts a small number of children's programmes weekday early mornings. These are generally repeats and are aimed at a Pre-school audience.

Executive Summary

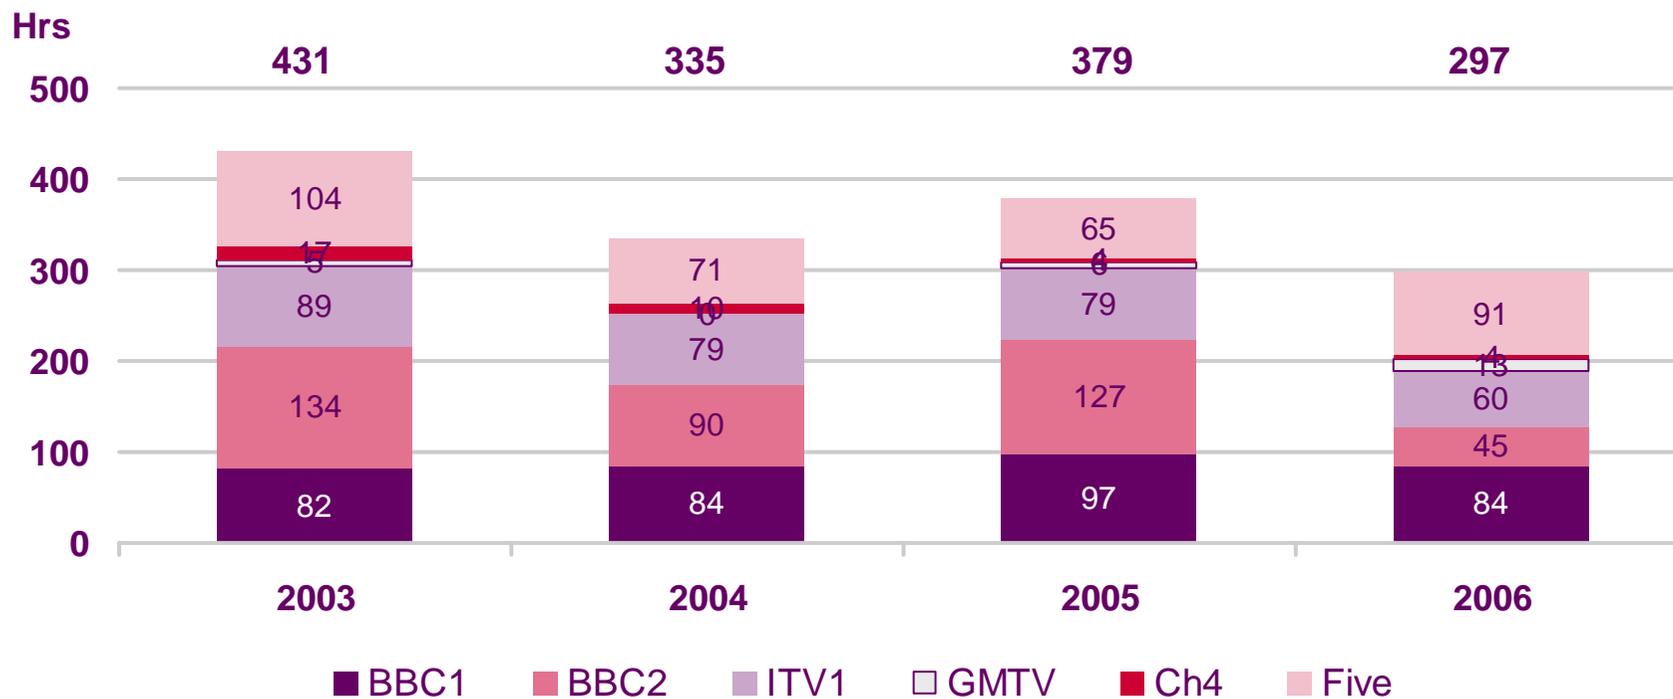

- Across the PSB main channels, comparing 2006 to 2003, hours of Drama programming has declined by 31% from 431 to 297 hours, as has Cartoons by 19% (1,250 to 1,015 hours). Hours dedicated to Factual programming have decreased very slightly by 2% (from 366 to 357 hours) as have hours dedicated to Light Entertainment/Quizzes by 4% (from 533 to 513 hours in 2006). Total hours of Pre-school provision has declined by 16% (from 1,809 hours in 2003 to 1,514 hours in 2006).
- Across CBBC and CBeebies, comparing 2006 with 2003, hours of Drama provision has decreased by 26% (from 1,281 in 2003 to 948 hours in 2006) and Cartoons by 17% (890 hours in 2006). Hours of Factual programming has increased by 41% (926 hours in 2006), Light Entertainment/Quizzes by 12% (1,435 hours in 2006) and Pre-school by 3% (from 3,096 in 2003 to 3,189 hours in 2006).
- Across the commercial children's channels, comparing 2006 with 2003, hours of Drama programming increased by over 150% from 1,501 hours in 2003 to 3,938 hours in 2006. Hours dedicated to Cartoons increased by 17% from 49,789 in 2003 to 58,167 in 2006 and Factual programming by 43% (although this was mainly due to an increase in provision by Discovery Kids which came off air in 2007). Hours dedicated to Pre-school output increased by 7% to 10,724 hours. Hours dedicated to Light Entertainment/Quizzes declined by over one quarter (26%) from 2,212 to 1,628 hours.
- In terms of dayparts on the PSB main channels, the breakfast slot (06:00-09:29) provides the greatest proportion of children's output across all the PSB main channels combined, which represented 69% of their children's output in 2006.

Genre analysis by channel

This next section examines each of the children's sub-genres and the contribution made to total children's programming provision by each of the PSB main channels, and each of the dedicated children's channels.

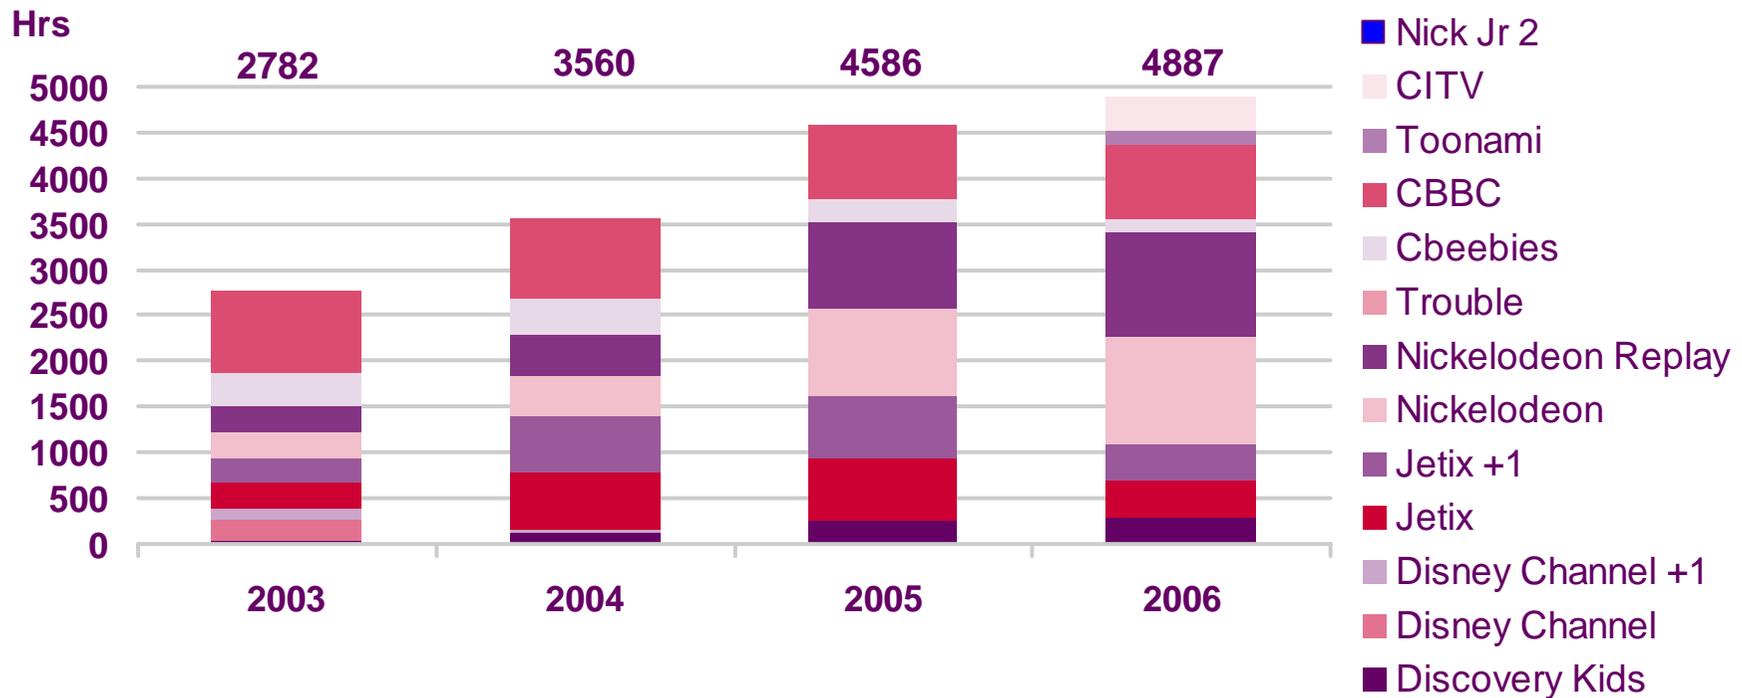

When looking at the combined output of the BBC main channels together with CBBC and CBeebies, one must note that CBBC and CBeebies are not accessible to all.

Appendix: List of recoded programmes

- In Ofcom's main report, The future of children's television, we published analysis of children's programme genres which included a manual recoding of the Children's Miscellaneous genre. This was undertaken in order to attempt to gain a clearer picture of any changes in Children's subgenre provision over time.
- This appendix provides a list of the children's programmes that were recoded in this analysis, together with the new Children's classification. This was undertaken by assessing how similar programmes were classified within BARB, together with desk research to check the format of a programme.
